

Concrete = Dead

Why do we choose to walk on concrete?

Concrete is DEAD, it is a mixture made with cars in mind, not human beings. I am not referring to the concrete-like material used by ancient Mesopotamians nor am I referring to the one used by the Romans as I consider them to be "IMMORTAL".

I am referring to the modern day concrete, the so called "Portland concrete" made to be durable and strong enough to withstand thousands of cars on a daily basis, NOT HUMAN BEINGS.

But why?

Why not use DEAD CONCRETE for streets and highways and GRASS...DIRT... MUD or even STONES for walking, as it is much more enjoyable to walk on grass than DEAD CONCRETE.

The answer is simple, you cannot CONTROL something that is ALIVE.

What do grass, dirt, mud and stones have in common?

They are all elements that are LIVING therefore much harder to CONTROL, MANIPULATE and DISTORT than DEAD CONCRETE.
